

Potentially lowering or at least stabilizing the cost of broadband service by allowing electric companies to use the power grid is a good idea. Radio interference problems will eventually be solved.